Green Dragon Tavern's California-Inspired Maine Lobster Rolls

The savory success of this modern, California alternative to traditional Maine lobster rolls is credited to Green Dragon chef Gregory Krol. "We were looking to create a modern-day, West Coast twist on a New England classic," he says.

A whole lobster is poached in butter, then chilled. Next, lobster pieces are tossed in lemon anchovy aioli and seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. Diced avocado and mango bits are added. It's all loaded into a toasted, buttery brioche bun and topped with maple-candied bacon and fresh cilantro, and served with locally sourced mixed greens.
